Monthly Commentary

While sentiment toward U.S. small-cap growth stocks remains subdued, first-quarter fundamentals were quite strong. In May, the Granahan US Focused Growth UCITS Fund returned +8.9% (USD), outperforming the Russell 2000 Growth Index's +6.4% (USD) gain. A meaningful underweight in Health Care served as a tailwind for the portfolio, while both an overweight position and strong stock selection in Financials and Technology contributed significantly to performance. Additionally, underweights in Energy and Basic Materials, paired with strong stock selection, further boosted results. On the downside, detractors included overweight positions in Consumer Discretionary and Real Estate, as well as an underweight in Industrials. As political uncertainty clouds broader market sentiment, we believe perhaps investors would be well served to focus on the strong underlying fundamentals of the companies we hold.

The Russell 2000® Growth Index measures the performance of the small cap growth segment of the US equity universe. It includes those Russell 2000® companies with higher price-to-value ratios and higher forecasted growth values.
